Dear Horned Frogs,

Welcome home to each of our faculty and staff members!

Every fall, the energy comes alive in a different way with new faces, new ideas and new opportunities to create knowledge, connect with students and make a genuine difference.

Our students have brought their all to Fort Worth, and I believe that you, our 2,300 faculty and staff, provide an unparalleled academic experience.

Higher education is being asked important questions about value, cost and purpose. We welcome those questions because we are confident in our answers, as we continue to attract the most talented students, faculty and staff to TCU.

As we strive to meet the challenge of the moment, our newly announced TCU Scholarship Initiative is designed to raise $300 million in scholarship funding to help outstanding scholars become proud Horned Frogs.

This exemplifies our commitment to keeping a TCU education within reach of every qualified student, while our increase in external research funding is a signal that the work being conducted by our faculty and staff is becoming increasingly ambitious. I dive into all of this, and more, in my latest blog post, which you can read here.

The year ahead will move faster than we think, so let me thank you now for supporting our students and celebrating accomplishments with your colleagues as you continue to provide an exceptional TCU experience.

I am grateful to work alongside you as we prepare the next generation of leaders. Let's make it a great year.

Lead On and Go Frogs,
